Distinguished Service Award recipient

Irving Greenberg, Z.L. '91 awardee

By Cynthia Engel

The late Irving Greenberg, chairman and president of Minto Developments, Inc., who played a major consultative role in all matters affecting the Ottawa Jewish community, has been chosen to receive the coveted Gilbert Greenberg Distinguished Service Award for 1991.

The designation of Mr. Greenberg as this year's honoree was announced by Dr. Eli Rahin, president of the Jewish Community Council and Stephen Victor, chairman of the Distinguished Service Award Committee. Only one other recipient, the late Hy Hochberg, received the highly prized award posthumously.

The Gilbert Greenberg Award is the highest tribute which the Jewish community can give to an individual for exceptional service over the course of many years. It bears the name of the late Past President Gilbert Greenberg, brother of the 1991 honoree, who exemplified the qualities of leadership which the award seeks to recognize each year.

Initiated in 1980

Initiated in 1980, it was first presented to the Ottawa Chevra Kadisha. The late Lawrence Freiman was the recipient in 1981. He was followed by Hyman Gould in 1982; Thomas Sachs in 1983; Norman Zagerman in 1984; the late Hy Hochberg in 1985; Sol B. Shinder in 1986; Hyman Soloway in 1987; Greta Cohen in 1988; Justice Abraham H. Leiff in 1989; and Bertha and Abe Palmer in 1990.

The formal presentation will be made at the Annual Meeting of the community on Wednesday, June 12. The meeting marks the 57th anniversary of the founding of the organization in 1934.

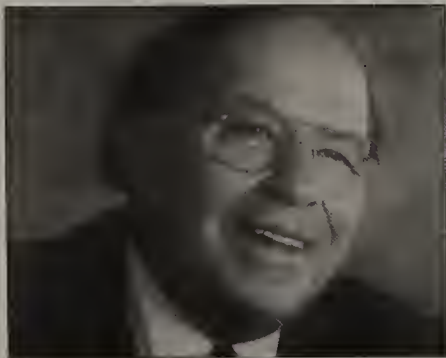

Irving Greenberg was born in Ottawa, the fifth of the six children of the late Rose and Roger Greenberg, who had emigrated from Russia. At the time of his birth, in 1928, theirs was a home poor in money but rich in love.

Highly ethical

His father, whose greatest pleasure was to go to synagogue, was a highly ethical man who eked out a living collecting and selling fute bags to keep his young family going.

Times were tough and their father suffered from early ill health, so even as children the Greenberg offspring had one thing in common: they had to earn a living. Even the daughters pitched in. On more than one occasion, Jen's salary from Slover's department store fed the family.

Each day after school, before attending to his homework, Irving, a straight A student and superb athlete, would go downstairs into the basement of the family's tiny downtown home and sort bags for his father.

Despite the repeated urgings of his teachers, who had recognized his brilliance, Irving refused to go on to university.

"I have an obligation to stay home and help my Dad," he said, and the subject was closed.

When his father finally put together sufficient money to open a small factory in Hull, it was manned by the family 24 hours a day. Irving took the nightshift, ever alert to the sounds of scurrying rats as he tried to grab a few minutes sleep on a narrow cot.

Red River floods

The floods that swelled Winnipeg's Red River in 1950 turned the tide of the Greenberg family's fortunes. Like his siblings, Irving's sister Grace worked in the business. As a salesperson she had made contacts in government who asked her if the small firm might be able to supply the jute bags necessary to stem the waters of the swollen river. It did, and the Greenberg legend began.

A visionary, Roger Greenberg had always wanted his children to become involved in real estate. When he broached the subject his offspring questioned the idea, pointing out their lack of funds.

"The secret," their father replied, "is to do it without money," and promptly went up the street from the factory, bought an apartment building and within three months flipped it, realizing a greater profit than his business had made in six months. Then he challenged his children to go into the construction business.

The four brothers, Lou, Gilbert, Irving and Lorry, started their venture under the name Mercury Homes but when they went to officially register it, they discovered the name was already in use. It was Irving who chose the name 'Minto' after a former governor general, because it was short, and because, as early as 1955-56 he anticipated the advent of bilingualism and knew that Minto could be used easily in both languages.

Minto prospered and the partners got along well. Eventually two of the brothers left the business for other pursuits, Lou, to lead a quieter lifestyle; Lorry, to become involved in municipal politics, trusting Gilbert and Irving to steer the ship. The two worked together in harmony every day and night of their lives until Gilbert's untimely death in 1979.

With financial success came the luxury of helping others, and Irving Greenberg selflessly indulged his great passion for worthy causes. Myriad people, institutions and causes locally, nationally and internationally, were the recipients of his philanthropy over the years.

In the Jewish community, he was a pillar of tzedakah to the end, through United Jewish Appeal; the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation, over which he presided as president 1985-87; and in his love of Israel, bringing the Israel Philharmonic and Itzhak Perlman to Ottawa for the state's 40th Anniversary; and through his involvement with the Technion.

While his brothers, Gilbert, and later, Lorry, maintained high profiles in the operations of the Ottawa Jewish community, Irving participated quietly on the sidelines. His counsel was sought repeatedly, and when a major project had to be accomplished quickly, he

Arnon Vered chosen Freiman Award winner

By Cynthia Engel

Stephen Victor, chairman of the selection committee, has announced that Arnon Vered has been chosen 1991 recipient of the Freiman Family Young Leadership Award.

In making the announcement, Mr. Victor said, "Arnie has demonstrated a passionate commitment to our community and to Israel over the course of the past several years and has, with a deep sense of responsibility, readily assumed leadership roles in our important institutions."

Established in 1988, the Freiman Family Young Leadership Award recognizes a member of the Ottawa Jewish Community under the age of 40 who has contributed actively to the Jewish community in the two or more years following his/her participation in the Young Leadership Development Program, or who as a young leader rendered exceptional service to the Jewish community.

The first recipient was Barbara Farber in 1988. She was followed by Stephen Greenberg in 1989; and Morris Presser in 1990. The 1991 award will be presented to Arnon Vered at the Annual Meeting of the Community on Wednesday, June 12.

A native Ottawan, the 1991 awardee credits his parents, Sara and Zeev Vered, with setting the example.

"My parents were involved to better the Jewish community for their children," the father of four says. "And I want to do whatever I can to make it better for mine."

Vered, 34, puts his words into action. As the current president of the board of the Jewish Community Campus, he is deriving immense satisfaction from the challenge of deciding how to achieve maximum and effective use of the facilities at 881 and 831 Broadview.

He is presently a member of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Community Council/Vaad Ha'Ir and, as well, sits on the Vaad Board of Trustees. In addition, he is vice-president of the Ottawa Talmud Torah Board, is active on the Jewish Community Properties Management Committee and chairs the Hillel Academy Special Needs Committee.

Committed to both the Ottawa Jewish community and Israel, Arnon has been involved with the United Jewish Appeal and State of Israel Bonds campaigns, and is president of the Ottawa Chapter of the Friends of the Technion.

Vered's concern for this community and his dedication as a volunteer are genuine.

"If I don't do my best at something I've volunteered for, it really bothers me," he says. "Volunteering means committing to do something, not just volunteering."

His sincerity is readily evident: on more than one occasion, when business has taken him to the west coast, he has caught the 'red eye' flight back to be able to attend a community-related meeting.

As a civil engineer and a director of Arnon Development Corporation Ltd., Vered is accustomed to making considered decisions and acting on them without delay. That pragmatic approach is evident in one of his goals for the community: decreasing the time in which things are accomplished.

"Society is changing quickly and people don't appreciate that fact," he explains. "It's important that people know that they can make a difference. And they will if they participate."

Arnon and his wife, Elizabeth, are the proud parents of four daughters, Ariel, Danya, Jordana and Alexandra.

Under the terms of the award, the Selection Committee is composed of the past president of the Council who acts as chairman; the chair of the Young Leadership Development Program, the chairman of the Board of Rabbis, and two Jewish Community Council trustees appointed by the Executive Committee. This year's committee included Stephen Victor, Dr. Eli Rabin (ex officio), Robert Greenberg, Rabbi Reuven Bulka, Morris Presser, recipient, Roz Kanigsberg, Gary Viner and A.J. Freiman.

Vaad Report

Dr. Eli Rabin, President
PRESIDENT, OTTAWA VAAO HA'IR
JEWISH COMMUNITY COUNCIL

SHAVUOT
We have just completed celebrating Shavuot or the Feast of Weeks. For the Jewish people this festival represents a major historical landmark. "We" received the Torah at Mount Sinai and at this point in time the Tribes of Israel became galvanized into a nation. For many people the recognition that the roots of Jewish Nationhood are firmly planted with the Torah and its teachings has been most difficult. The non-Jewish world has preferred to look upon us as a religious entity without a country; in recent history, however, "The Jewish People" as a nation has received grudging acceptance.

We as a community expend a great deal of time, energy, and material resources to keep Judaism alive. We insist on supporting educational facilities for our young people so that Torah, Jewish history and culture will be taught rigorously and effectively. Synagogues provide extra programs which bind people together and give all ages within the community to experience the richness of Yiddishkeit. Clubs, organizations, and the Jewish Community Centre, contribute enormously to the vitality and well-being of this community.

All of these activities keep us together as a Jewish Community rather than simply being a community of Jews. Keeping together as a Jewish Community requires organization and dedicated work by you — "The People." Each and every one of us stands at Mount Sinai annually and re-affirms the tie and connection with the Jewish People and Torah.

UNITED JEWISH APPEAL MISSION

On Wednesday, May 15th the Ottawa UJA Mission returned from their visit to the Soviet Union and Israel. The participants were able to visit Soviet Jews in their country of birth and witness the privation and difficulties facing them. Clearly the situation for many is difficult. For some, however, life in Russia is acceptable and they have assimilated into the country and at present see no reason to leave Mother Russia. For others the time to get out is now and hundreds of thousands are getting ready to leave. There is another group who have a wait-and-see attitude. There is a pervasive fear because of the latent anti-Semitism but that fear has not yet been translated into action for emigration. The participants discovered that the Soviet Union is not a Gan Eden. Life there is difficult.

The participants then travelled on to Israel where a tiny country is absorbing hundreds of thousands of Soviet Jews. Times are difficult in Israel also but there is a sense of hope and renewal. Diaspora Jewry, world-wide, along with the State of Israel is in the midst of an historical challenge. Let us hope that we all meet that challenge successfully.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

On Wednesday, June 12th the Annual General Meeting of the Vaad Ha'ir will take place. At that meeting I shall be transferring the "mantle of the Presidency" to Dr. Maureen Molot and a new group of officers will be installed. Over the past few years more and more women have been assuming leadership roles within the community and at this Annual Meeting we will witness the installation of the first woman president of the Vaad. I hope that many members of the community will join us at the Annual Meeting to witness the new president and her officers well for the coming two years.

was there.

"Irving was very much committed to this community," his brother Lorry says. "He wasn't physically there but he was there. He never questioned the validity, the quality or the quantity of Gilly's contributions in time or money."

On two occasions before his death on January 25 of this year, Irving Greenberg told his brother, Lorry, "I have lived what I think is a good, complete and honorable life."

Among the many who would agree with that assessment is the greater Ottawa Jewish community which, throughout his lifetime, benefitted from his wisdom and generosity.

Under the terms of the award, the Selection Committee is composed of the past president of the Council who acts as chairman; the chairman of the Women's Federation; the chairman of the Board of Rabbis; and two trustees appointed by the Executive Committee. This year's committee included Stephen Victor, Dr. Eli Rabin (ex officio), Vera Klein, Rabbi Reuven Bulka, Sunny Tavel and Norman Zagerman.

EDITOR

After a whirlwind two weeks, one spent in Russia, the other in Israel, our 'missionaries' — the 36 participants in the 1991 United Jewish Appeal Mission to the Soviet Union and the Jewish Homeland — are back, worn to a frazzle from the intensity of the journey but full to overflowing with tales to be told.

What a trip it was!

They stopped for souvenirs in Moscow's answer to the Sparks Street Mall and brought back pretty lacquered boxes and 'Gorbachev' dolls and all manner of memorabilia and marvelled at the ingenuity of the crafty street merchants who have devised most incredible schemes to procure U.S. dollars under the noses of the ever-present KGB.

They visited Leningrad and returned shaking their heads over the lack of quality of life in that drab, far off city.

They chuckled at the memory of a six-hour train trip from Leningrad to Moscow and howl at the shenanigans that went on with a conductor who, for hard currency, readily parted with the shirt off his back and the hat off his head.

Their eyes light up remembering the glittering magnificence of the Bolshoi Theatre where they revelled in a performance of Tosca, and cannot fathom, in this modern day, that people must line up for foodstuffs; that whole families are rationed two kilos of meat per week; that the total living space in a 'better' apartment is the equivalent of an average-sized North American living room.

But they know it is so, because they saw it firsthand.

But most of all, they remember standing in the long lineup of Soviet Jews winding all the way down the street, waiting to be granted exit visas to Israel. And they remember the conversations they had with these Russian hopefuls as they shared their fears and their dreams, their desires and expectations.

And they boarded the plane leaving Russia grateful for the existence of their next destination, tiny, golden Israel, and with a new appreciation of the easy and free lifestyle they enjoy as Canadians.

In an issue to come, when they have sorted out their memories and selected the best of them, our 'missionaries' will share the highlights of that very special trip with all of us. There is not one among them who is not eternally thankful that years ago parents or grandparents were able to leave that difficult life behind.

And there is not one among them who is not aware of the miracle that is Israel, waiting daily to receive its own with full heart and open arms.

Share deepest feelings, impressions

'March' participants play major role in Yom Ha Shoah observance

Yom Ha Shoah was observed Sunday, April 28 at the Jewish Community Cemetery with the annual memorial observance for the Six Million Martyrs.

About 450 community members of all ages attended the ceremony held from 11 a.m. until noon which was focused this year on linking the generations through remembrance.

Eleven high school students who attended the March of the Living presented a combined diary of their trip to the concentration camps. They portrayed their deepest feelings and impressions, beginning with the fear and wonder of what they would encounter, to a search for G-d.

The group including Michael Cracower, Eliyanah Delicate, Eileen Glenns, Julia Goldberg, Rochelle Ironstone, Dafna Jalón, David Lander, Esther Lederman, Samantha Lomow,

The ceremony began with opening remarks by the Holocaust Remembrance Committee Chairperson Vera Gara. Six memorial flames were lit by Cantor and Mrs. David Apowitz, William Grossman, Dr. Truda Rosenberg and Mr. and Mrs. Shmuel Feig.

As the flames blazed in the chill, gusting wind, a moment of silence was observed. The Yiddish reading, "The Legacy" and "The Acceptance" in English were read by Survivor Leah Kalin and Dr. Michael Roborn, a Second Generation Survivor.

Rabbi Irwin Tannenbaum of Temple Israel presented a powerful memorial address to the Holocaust. Greetings were made by Jewish Community Council of Ottawa President Dr. Eli Rabin and Israeli Ambassador Itzhak Shelef. Survivor Mendel Good dramatically told the episode of his liberation.

Cantor Moshe Kraus, ended the ceremony with traditional prayers and anthems of hope.

Antiviral, antitumor interferon verging on commercial success

REHOVOT, Israel — Following years of slow build-up, prospects for the commercial success of the antiviral, antitumor agent interferon are finally turning rosy.

Among the pharmaceutical manufacturers likely to benefit from this development is InterPharm Laboratories, an Israel company that produces and markets several varieties of interferon, in particular human beta-interferon, all based on biotechnology know-how developed by Prof. Michel Revel's group at the Institute's Department of Molecular Genetics and Virology.

Some portions of this development were carried out with the collaboration of his departmental colleague, Prof. Menachem Rubinstein.

Prof. Revel, who divides his time between the Institute and InterPharm, is clearly pleased at this turn of events.

"When interferon and its activities in the body were first discovered, he recalls, "the protein was hailed as a wonder drug that would cure cancer, the common cold, and scores of other diseases."

"Today, while realistic estimates point to more restricted uses for the drug, it has already been approved for use in various herpes and papilloma virus infections, particularly of the genital region, as well as in therapy for the AIDS-related cancer Kaposi's sarcoma and in a rare form of leukemia.

"Many other applications are now being tested in patients and markets for the drug are expected to eventually reach the $1b level."

In 1983, Revel's group — including Dr. Yves Mory, today with InterPharm — developed a genetically engineered cell line derived from Chinese hamster ovary tissue, which produces massive amounts of beta-interferon that is identical to that manufactured in the human body.

Following an extensive development phase, conducted during the last three years by InterPharm and Weizmann Institute scientists headed by Prof. Rubinstein and more recently by his departmental colleague Prof. Orgad Laub, an F.D.A. permit has already been issued in the United States for clinical testing of this beta-interferon.

This technology provides the company with a front-running product for sale in an expanding interferon market.

The Weizmann Institute and InterPharm are also collaborating in the development of engineered hamster ovary cells producing the natural biological modifying agent interleukin-6 — discovered and cloned 11 years ago in the same Institute laboratories. This protein has shown promise in animal experimentation for treating cancer and speeding bone marrow transplantation. But clinical trials of interleukin-6 are still about a year off.

"Ani Ma'amain" — A Real Belief

By Rabbi Mordecai Berger

Young Israel Congregation

Of the most ancient and hallowed melodies sung by Jews is the "Ani Maamin" (I believe). The source of this song is the 13 principles of faith articulated by the Rambam, which are basic values of the Jewish religion. The song of Ani Maamin expresses the total belief in the coming of Mashiach (The Messiah). "And even though he may be late, nevertheless, I wait each day for his coming". Jews have sung this song as an expression of hope and faith during holy days and happy ones, times of crisis and at life's end. It symbolizes the eternity of the Jewish life, always filled with hope that tomorrow will be our redemption.

Yet, the belief in Mashiach is not merely abstract lyrics to a song. Rather a constant truism of attitude, thus underlying the unique faith of the Jew. While other religions have taken and distorted the Jewish value to form their own religions, the Jewish prophets are the source of this unique concept...the coming of "Mashiach", the messiah.

Rambam (Mishnah Torah, Hilchos Melachim 12:1-2) sets out the following principles in regard to the era of the Redemption. "One should not entertain the notion that in the era of 'Mashiach' any elements of the natural order will be nullified, or that there will be innovations in the work of creation. Rather the world will continue according to its pattern. Although Isaiah states that 'the wolf will dwell with the lamb'...these words are an allegory and a riddle, meaning that Israel will dwell securely together with the wicked, who are likened to wolves and leopards. In this era, all nations will return to true faith and no longer rob and destroy...Similarly, other prophecies of this nature concerning Mashiach are analogies. In the era of Mashiach, everyone will realize what was implied by these analogies.

Our sages taught (Brachos 34b) there will be no difference between the current age and the era of Mashiach except our emancipation from subjugation to the gentile kingdoms.

Rambam also writes (Hilchos Melachim) In the days of Mashiach, Israel will once again achieve the clarity of vision which they attained at Sinai. Their vision will not be distorted by any distractions placed before their eyes for they shall "see" with their understanding, guided by the spoken words of the prophets. All mankind shall share in the Messianic gift, together, in harmony, free from dissension, in brotherhood, without jealousy or pride. Each creature will recognize its own path and not interfere with each other. The fulfillment of the prayer we say each day, "All standing in unity we bless and adore the Almighty," will be achieved, speedily in our times.

Yiddish lovers enjoy movie and sing-along

By Estelle Backman

The Mamme Loshon Chovra, the Jewish Community Centre's Yiddish cultural program, presented a wonderful evening of nostalgia and entertainment on Sunday, May 5, at the Jewish Community Centre.

The room was filled with the joy of speaking Yiddish, seeing old acquaintances, and meeting new ones. The enthusiasm and appreciation these Yiddishists felt was demonstrated by the excellent turnout of over 50 people.

The evening began with a sing-along led by Jackie Langsner who has been running a monthly Yiddish singing group since the fall. Traditional songs like Tumba-la-laika warned the audience up and set the stage for what was to follow.

The highlight of the program was a video called Dhem Chazn's Zindle (The Cantor's Song). The film chronicles the moving story of the rise to fame of a shtetl-born cantor.

Participants went home very satisfied and looking forward to future Yiddish cultural programs. A new committee is now being formed to work with the JCC in planning the next event. All suggestions are most welcome.

Accepted into Cantor's Assembly

After long struggle, fourteen women are inducted as cantors

LOS ANGELES, May 7 — For the first time in its 44-year history, 14 women have been inducted as members of the Cantors Assembly, the world's largest body of cantors (in Hebrew, hazzanim).

Their induction at the Assembly's annual convention here, along with that of 18 of their male counterparts, culminated a three-year struggle between liberals and traditionalists in the organization involving the Cantors Assembly and the Jewish Theological Seminary, both arms of Conservative Judaism.

In Jewish tradition, women had been exempted from observing time-related commandments such as daily communal prayer. The traditional interpretation of Jewish law (halacha) also holds that one who is not required to fulfill a commandment cannot serve as the "enabler" — such as a cantor, who represents the congregation in prayer — for those who have this obligation.

For these reasons, until recent years, women have not served as clergy — rabbis or cantors — in Jewish houses of worship.

In response to contemporary egalitarian mores, barriers against women in Jewish religious roles are gradually fading. The Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion (Reform) ordained the first woman rabbi in 1972 and the first woman cantor in 1975. Orthodoxy, the most traditional of Judaism's branches, does not permit women to officiate as either rabbis or cantors.

Conservative Judaism, which is based on the evolution of Jewish law, has adopted a middle-of-the-road position, seeking to adapt Jewish custom to modern times while retaining loyalty to tradition. In 1985, the Jewish Theological Seminary ordained the first Conservative woman rabbi. This action was based on a responsum by Rabbi Joel Roth of the Seminary's law committee, who held that if a woman voluntarily chose to obligate herself to observe time-related commandments (such as daily communal prayer), she could then be permitted to serve as a rabbi.

The Chancellor Rules

In December 1986, Dr. Ismar Schorsch, chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary, informed leaders of the Cantors Assembly that he was prepared to interpret Rabbi Roth's responsum on the ordination of women rabbis as appropriate to women cantors as well. In February 1987, Dr. Schorsch announced that the Seminary would grant the diploma of hazzan (cantor) to two women who would be graduating from its Cantors Institute that May.

Some traditionalists among the members of the Cantors

Assembly felt that applying the Roth responsum to women cantors would go beyond the bounds of halacha, as they interpreted it, and urged that women not be permitted to join the Assembly. Liberal members expressed the view that since the head of the Conservative movement had ruled that the ordination of women as cantors was permissible according to halacha, they should be admitted to the Cantors Assembly.

Last August, under the admitting authority granted by its by-laws, the executive council of the Cantors Assembly voted 29-1 to admit qualified women cantors as full-fledged members of the organization and to induct them at its 1991 convention.

Salads, in the average home, used to consist of nothing more than mixed greens or a large chunk of iceberg lettuce, topped with a mound of usually bought dressing. The reason was largely attributed to a mainly meat and potatoes diet but that has changed greatly over the last 10 years or so. Now the availability of so many salad ingredients makes it possible to create fabulous and different salads almost every time you put one together.

Mandarin Orange and Almond Salad

- | | |
|---|-------------------------------|
| 1/4 cup whole blanched almonds | 1 Tbsp. minced, fresh parsley |
| 2 Tbsp. sugar | 1/4 cup vegetable oil |
| 1 small head iceberg lettuce torn into small pieces | 2 Tbsp. white vinegar |
| 1 cup chopped celery | 1/2 tsp. salt |
| 11 oz. tin mandarin oranges, drained | 1/4 tsp. pepper |
| | Dash Tabasco sauce |

2 green onions, chopped

Cut almonds in half, crosswise. Combine with 2 Tbsp. sugar in a heavy saucepan. Place over medium heat. Cook, stirring constantly, until sugar melts and coats the almonds. Remove and let cool completely. Combine lettuce, celery, mandarins, green onions and parsley in large bowl. Toss well. Combine remaining 2 Tbsp. sugar with remaining ingredients in a jar. Screw lid on tightly and shake well. Combine with vegetables and almonds and toss well. Serves 6-8.

Warm Chicken and Papaya Salad

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|---|
| Dressing: | Salad: |
| 1 scallion | 3 Tbsp. sesame seeds or toasted almonds |
| 1 Tbsp. Dijon mustard | 8 skinned and deboned chicken breast halves cut into 1/2" wide strips |
| 3/4 tsp. salt | 2 Tbsp. peanut oil |
| 1/4 tsp. white pepper | 2 red peppers cut into julienned strips |
| 6-8 fresh orange sections (pitless) | 2 Tbsp. soy sauce |
| 3/8 cup white vinegar | 2 ripe avocados |
| 1/2 cup orange juice | 3 ripe papayas |
| 1 1/4 cups vegetable oil | 2 heads Bibb or 1 head Boston lettuce, washed and separated into leaves |
| 2 tsp. freshly grated ginger | |

In processor, puree the scallion, mustard, salt, pepper and orange sections. Add vinegar and orange juice and slowly add the oil through the feed tube with the machine running. Process until thick. Add ginger root and pulse On/Off just to combine. Set aside at room temperature or if made a day ahead, chill. In a wok, toast sesame seeds until golden brown. Remove and set aside. Heat peanut oil, add chicken and red pepper and stir fry until barely done, about 2 minutes. Turn off the heat and add soy sauce. Peel and slice avocados and papayas. Arrange lettuce on individual plates and arrange fruit around the edges of plates. Pour dressing over the chicken and peppers and heat, but do not boil (it will separate). Mound chicken and peppers into the centres of the plates, drizzling some of the dressing on the papayas and avocados. Sprinkle sesame seeds over and serve immediately.

Red Potato Salad With Caraway

- | | |
|--|------------------------------|
| 3 lbs. small red potatoes, scrubbed but not peeled | 1/4 cup chopped scallions |
| 1/4 cup tarragon vinegar | 1 tsp. crushed caraway seed |
| 2-3 Tbsp. sugar | 1/4 tsp. celery seeds |
| 1/4 tsp. paprika | 1/2 cup sour cream |
| Salt and pepper to taste | 1/2 cup mayonnaise |
| 1/3 cup chopped green pepper | Large Boston lettuce leaves |
| | 3 Tbsp. snipped fresh chives |
- Cook potatoes until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain and pat dry. Cut into 1/4" thick slices. Combine vinegar, 2 Tbsp. of the sugar, paprika, salt and pepper in large bowl and whisk well. Mix in warm potatoes and marinate 45 minutes. Gently mix green pepper, scallions, caraway and celery seeds with potatoes. Combine sour cream and mayonnaise and mix into the salad. Adjust seasoning and add the remaining sugar, if desired. Cover and chill until cold, at least 2 1/2 hours. (Can be prepared 1 day ahead.) Cover well and chill. Let stand at room temperature 30 minutes before serving. Line a shallow bowl or platter with lettuce leaves. Add salad and sprinkle with chives.

Weizmann experts may be winning war against weeds

REHOVOT, Israel...The amount of herbicide needed to prevent the growth of weeds may be dramatically reduced in the near future, thanks to a new weed-fighting strategy developed at the Weizmann Institute of Science.

The approach involves the simultaneous application of an ordinary herbicide along with a special chemical agent designed to knock out a weed's normal defences against herbicides.

Weizmann scientists found, in greenhouse experiments with the new mixture, that weed growth can be prevented using only a quarter to half as much herbicide as is ordinarily needed. Moreover, this strategy is likely to delay the appearance of herbicide resistance in weeds by at least five to fifteen years.

In addition to saving farmers money, the new herbicide mixture should also reduce the risk of environmental damage caused by the widespread use of chemicals in the soil.

US Congress support for Israel remains strong: GOP lawmakers

NEW YORK — Four Republican lawmakers told the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations in April that Congressional support for Israel has remained potent since the end of the Gulf War and that Israel enjoys what one called "tremendous strength" in the Senate and House among Republicans as well as Democrats.

They also agreed that there was negligible Congressional interest in resuming larger-scale arms sales to Arab members of the Gulf coalition.

Stock high

While Israel's stock remains high, they said, sympathy for the Arab cause has diminished and the concept of Arab "moderates" has been all but discredited since Operation Desert Storm.

The four, regarded as vigorous pro-Israel members of Congress, were:

Senator Connie Mack of Florida and Representatives Rick Santorum of Pennsylvania, Vin Weber of Minnesota and Dick Zimmer of New Jersey.

Sees little Arab support

Senator Mack, who co-sponsored the law requiring the State Department to report to Congress periodically on its talks with the PLO — along with a resolution backed by 80 Senators urging direct talks between Israel and her Arab neighbors — said he saw little current support in the Senate for the Administration's proposed $14 billion weapons sale to Saudi Arabia.

"The issue of arms sales and arms control must await the conclusion of Arab-Israeli negotiations," he said.

Representative Weber, an 11-year House veteran, endorsed Senator Mack's view and noted that one measure of the backing Israel enjoys in Congress is the bi-partisan nature of its support. The pro-Israel coalition now includes increasing numbers of Republicans, many of whom have replaced older G.O.P. members, he said.

As an example, he noted that last year Republicans voted for the foreign aid appropriations bill — of which Israel is the largest single beneficiary — in equal proportion to the support of Democrats, and that Republicans also actively supported U.S. assistance for the absorption of Soviet immigrants to Israel.

Representative Weber said he and other supporters of Israel in the House had urged that the Administration put human rights at the top of the agenda in its talks with Syria.

"There must be no deal with Hafez el-Assad that ignores terrorism or the rights of Syrian Jews," he said.

Representative Santorum said that the support Israel has traditionally enjoyed in Congress was "strongly reaffirmed" by the decision of Prime Minister Shamir and his cabinet to accede to American requests for restraint in the face of Iraqi Scud missile attacks during the Gulf War. "Neither Congress nor the American people have forgotten this courageous act," he said.

Representative Zimmer, the only Jewish member of the House from New Jersey, said there was increasing recognition in Congress that close ties between Washington and Jerusalem are in the American national interest. "Only Israel, of all states in the Middle East, is a staunch ally our country can count on," he said. "And more and more Congressmen understand that."

CNN goes bashing

Anti-Israel diatribe leaves no stone unturned

By Gary Wolf

Television viewers who tuned into the Cable News Network recently were treated to some of the most intense Israeli-bashing in recent memory.

The segment, a "CNN Special Assignment," depicted Israel as a savage country which invades its Arab neighbors, persecutes innocent Palestinians, and receives lots of American aid that it does not deserve.

The report, entitled "The Israel Connection," purported to explore the history of American-Israeli relations. That it did — but through the lens of those whose goal is to destroy those relations and portray Israel in the worst possible light.

Shallow understanding

CNN correspondent Mark Feldstein, who narrated the report, exhibited a strikingly shallow understanding of the history of the Arab-Israeli conflict. He described the Arab attack on newborn Israel in 1948 as the understandable response of "Arabs who had lived there for centuries who resented the new wave of Jews."

Feldstein is evidently unaware of the fact that large numbers of the Palestinian Arabs had not lived in the Holy Land "for centuries," but rather were recent immigrants who had flocked to the area during the early decades of the century, attracted by the prosperity that Jewish development had brought to the land. In fact, nearly 400,000 Arabs settled in British Mandatory Palestine between 1918 and 1939. As for the invading armies of Egypt, Syria, and Jordan, they hardly qualified as "local residents."

Harvard professor

Feldstein's descriptions of the subsequent Arab-Israeli wars were not much better. He referred to Israel having "attacked Egypt" in 1956, and interviewed a Harvard professor who reiterated that "Israel started that war" — but he didn't bother to interview anybody about the hundreds of Egyptian-sponsored terrorist attacks against Israel which provoked the 1956 war. (A good authority to question might have been Abba Eban — who was interviewed briefly at another point in the program — since his autobiography describes in great detail his numerous, and futile, complaints before the United Nations about the Egyptian terror campaign of the early 1950s).

Arab armies

In 1967, according to CNN's Feldstein, "Israel attacked and defeated the combined Arab armies" — but not a word about the Arab armies marching towards Israel's borders and vowing to destroy it.

When the CNN report began examining the history of American-Israeli relations, the distortions multiplied. Feldstein's review of recent history was just as misinformed as his remarks about decades past. He claimed that American support for Israel was part of "the ideology of the cold war," and when "the Soviet threat came crashing down, so too did the notion of Israel's permanent strategic importance to the United States." He then proceeded to air interviews with five different individuals, all of whom levelled harsh criticism at Israel.

Graham Fuller, formerly of the Central Intelligence Agency, said that "a special relationship is not helpful to either the United States or Israel any longer."

'Blindly following'

Former Senator Charles Percy called Israel undemocratic, and said that "blindly following and doing what Israel has asked us to do is wrong."

Harvard Professor Stanley Hoffman denounced Israel as "corrosive and morally dangerous."

Former State Department official George Ball called U.S. aid to Israel "a great detriment."

Robert Neuman, the former U.S. ambassador to Saudi Arabia, said Israel has "undermined" America's Arab allies.

The CNN report then set its teeth into the pro-Israel lobby. Feldstein declared that critics of the lobby "say it intimidates politicians and policymakers alike."

Careers of anti-Semitism

Percy and Ball, who have made virtual careers of anti-Israel activism, then took turns elaborating on that slanderous charge, while nobody with an opposing point of view was permitted to speak. Feldstein noted that an official spokesman for the lobby had declined to be interviewed — but that certainly did not relieve CNN of the responsibility of interviewing somebody whose view of the lobby differs from that of Percy and Ball.

Correspondent Feldstein concluded his report with some gratuitous editorializing. How long America's friendship with Israel will endure "may well depend on Israel's willingness to do what it has so far refused: change the status quo," Feldstein declared. "Until that happens, the aftermath of this war may only be a prelude to the next."

Feldstein is certainly entitled to his opinions, but they should have been broadcast as an editorial, not disguised as "news" — and unfortunately this was the case with the rest of the report, as well.

$250. Israel Bond to each

Adam Katz, Dalia Blumental win '91 JCC Grossman-Klein Awards

The Jewish Community Centre is very pleased to announce that the winners of this year's Grossman-Klein Family Youth Awards are Adam Katz and Dalia Blumental.

A $250 Israeli Bond will be presented to each teen at the J.C.C. Annual Meeting and Awards Night on Tuesday, June 4.

The entire community is invited to attend this event which will begin at 7:00 p.m. at the JCC, 151 Chapel Street.

The Grossman-Klein Family Youth Awards are presented annually in recognition of exceptional volunteer service to the Jewish community throughout the years.

Very active

Adam Katz, 16, is a Grade 11 student at Sir Robert Borden High School. Active in A.Z.A., last year he was secretary of the Hy Hochberg Chapter. For the last two years, he has also been secretary of the Jewish Teen Leadership Council. This year he became vice-chairperson of the J.T.L.C.

The Jewish Teen Leadership Council, made up of teens representing all the Jewish youth groups, as well as unfiliated teens, co-ordinates the different teen activities to reduce time conflicts, and plans city-wide programs such as dances, the Purim Carnival and Arts Alive.

This year Adam will be responsible for organizing the teen portion of the U.I.A. Walkathon. He will set up a J.T.L.C. booth, and work with the leaders of the various youth groups to recruit teens to man the checkpoints along the Walkathon route.

Favorite day

Adam calls the Walkathon "my favorite day."

"It brings the whole Jewish community together in a fun event," he explains. "It gives us all a sense of belonging to the community."

For the last few months, Adam has also been very busy with rehearsals for J.C.C. Theatreworks' West Side Story, in which he played the role of Chino. It was his first taste of acting and he thinks he has acquired the acting bug.

His first love, however, is still music. He has played piano for 12 years, and he plays drums in the Sir Robert Borden Senior Concert Band as well as the J.C.C. Concert Band.

Hillcrest student

Dalia Blumental, 17, is a Grade 12 student at Hillcrest High School.

She has been active in youth groups throughout her teen years. She attended Camp Geshet for three years and was involved in Habonim-Dror in the city, as well.

She also joined B.B.Y.O., a group in which her sister Ilana was deeply involved. In 1989 she was chosen Sweetheart at the annual Beauheart Convention. The following year she became vice-president of BBG Chapter B'Yachad and this year she was president of the BBG Ottawa Area Council. Her duties include sitting on the executive council of the Lake Ontario Region.

Adam Katz

"Being involved in an international organization like B.B.Y.O., you get to meet Jewish teens from all over," Dalia says.

Last summer Dalia attended two conferences sponsored by B'nai Brith, one on Judaism and one on leadership training.

She also had the opportunity to attend a youth leadership conference in Washington, D.C., held in conjunction with the Jewish Community Centre Association's Biennial. Dalia was chosen by her peers to represent them with a speech to the Biennial delegates.

Asked why she chose to be involved in the Jewish community, Dalia replied, "It's sort of a family tradition. My parents and my sister were involved and I followed the family example."

She also enjoys the fact that in BBYO kids plan their own programs. "It's hard work, but fun," she says.

Sweet finale planned for Na'amat's closer

By Kinneret Globerman
The Ottawa Council of Na'amat Canada is planning a sugar-coated evening to end a very busy year.

In past years, closing dinners have provided members with the opportunity to socialize with sister chapters but this year, Ottawa Council has decided to close on a somewhat sweeter note.

On Tuesday, June 4, chapter members and newcomers are invited to a sweet treat...an evening of delicious and delectable desserts. The event, beginning at 8 p.m. in the party room at 2220 Halifax Drive, will feature National President Rhona Blanshays presenting an update on Na'amat activities nationally and internationally. Guest speaker Jacqueline Holzman will provide the icing on the cake, so to speak. She'll be talking about women in politics.

Na'amat is a Labor Zionist organization that raises money for innumerable projects in Israel, from daycare centres (Na'amat provides Israel with over 60% of all its daycare), homes for traumatized children, and agricultural and vocational training schools, to name a few. Na'amat is also heavily involved in helping to settle the Soviet olim flooding into the country.

Admission to the program is a nominal $5. Newcomers to Na'amat are invited to attend. Anyone wanting more information may call Lillian Laks at 820-8373 or Judy Field at 231-4938.

SOMETHING WONDERFUL IS ABOUT TO HAPPEN.

MOSHIACH.

IT'S TIME WE READ ALL ABOUT IT.

'Moshiach' — the Messiah — refers to a great Jewish leader who will lead the world into the 'Messianic Era.'

THE ERA

The Messianic Era is an eternal age of peace and harmony among all peoples of the world. There will be no war, famine, sickness or jealousy. G-d's presence will be revealed and all negative energies will be channelled positively and elevated to the service of G-d — "For the world will be filled with the knowledge of G-d as the water covers the sea bed" (Isaiah 11:9).

THE MAN

Moshiach is a living man who is a descendant of the Royal House of King David. He is a saintly leader and great scholar whose knowledge embraces all of Torah wisdom. His revelation comes in two stages:

Initially, Moshiach reaches out to Jews everywhere in an effort to bring them back to their heritage, the Torah. He is a champion of G-dly causes, devoting himself totally, without rest or respite. An individual possessing all these qualities is assumed to be the Moshiach.

After he is successful in the above, rebuilds the Holy Temple in Jerusalem and returns the Jewish people to their homeland, we then know that he is certainly the Moshiach. The Messianic Age will have begun.

THE TIME IS NOW

The Bible and Talmud are replete with prophecies describing the miracles that will occur in the world just before Moshiach is revealed. We are living them now. Consider:

The Collapse of the Iron Curtain.
The Exodus of Russian Jewry.
The Miraculous Events in the Persian Gulf — the lightning-quick victory and Divine protection of Israel.

Indeed, the war in the Persian Gulf was prophetically described in all of its detail by the ancient Sages of Israel. This war, states the prophecy, will be followed by the revelation of Moshiach and peace for all humanity.

The world is ready.

WHAT CAN I DO?

Give more charity. Study more Torah. Pray for peace and the revelation of Moshiach now.

Every good deed counts.

Moshiach is only a moment away. It's up to us.

Artifacts, photographs, documents on display

Historical Society marks Beth Shalom's 100th

Beth Shalom Congregation is celebrating its hundredth year in 1991. To help mark the event the Ottawa Jewish Historical Society has created an interesting and insightful exhibition at the synagogue at 151 Chapel St.

Many artifacts, photographs and documents from the collections of the community archives are included in the display.

Intro by Bilsky

An interesting introduction written by Esther Bilsky, co-ordinator of the exhibit, explains that the Adath Jeshurun Ottawa's first Jewish congregation was established in 1890.

By 1910 the growing number of newcomers to Ottawa had created three more orthodox congregations: Agudath Achim in 1902, Machzikei Hadas in 1906 and B'nai Jacob in 1910.

Of these the Adath Jeshurun and the Agudath Achim joined, to become Congregation Beth Shalom in 1956.

In 1971 B'nai Jacob ceased to exist, and its members became a part of the school.

Ottawans will enjoy

Long-time Ottawa residents will enjoy the small exhibit for the memories it evokes. For newcomers it is an enjoyable lesson in the history of Ottawa's Jewish community.

Early copies of the Ottawa Jewish Bulletin help interpret the stories of the photographs with which they are displayed. An issue dated December 3, 1937 features the inauguration of the Hanover Breakfast Club for Jewish youths. A companion photograph features the graduating class of the Ottawa Hebrew Sunday School. The school was founded by Mrs. Zivian to provide Jewish education for your girls. The photo is a part of the Lazear Collection, Ann Tarantour Lazear, the valetictorian is shown along with several other beautiful young girls all dressed in white frocks.

The Beth Shalom Centennial Exhibition takes shape under the careful eyes of Volunteer Herbert Wortman, Archivist Shirley Beriman, Exhibition Co-ordinator Esther Bilsky and Assistant Mark Trudel.

A Karen-Hayesod certificate dated 1925 indicates that a donation of five British pounds, four shillings, two pence, the equivalent of $25.00 at that time, was donated for land purchases in Palestine by the Rideau Street Ladies Sisterhood. The certificate is signed by M. Ussishkin.

Especially treasured

One of the few items especially loaned for the display came from Bernard and Dorothy Alexander. It is the beautifully engraved trowel used by Archibald J. Freiman to lay the cornerstone of the Adath Jeshurun synagogue in 1904.

Breast plate and fillials

An ornate set of Torah Breast Plate and Fillials donated to the Adath Jeshurun in 1911 in memory of Faiga bas Rafael Ha Levy rest beside an elegant beaded antique Torah cover purchased in Brooklyn, New York in 1911.

In another display case a record book of executive minutes from the Adath Jeshurun Collection lies open at Sunday, September 3, 1915. It indicates that new members to the synagogue were voted in by ballot.

Several legal documents, deeds, and the employment contract of Jacob Dorskind are included.

Also on view is a photograph of Cantor Dorskind and the famous Agudath Achim men and boys choir of 1933. Four of the sons of Talmud Torah teacher Bernard Liefi sang with the choir.

A well preserved white satin bimah cover donated to the B'nai Jacob congregation in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Tzvi Hecht by their son, Harry, graces another display case. This recently restored artifact was a gift to the OJHS by Jennie Hecht. It is indicative of the work involved in preserving the artistry and beauty of Jewish religious items.

Not often exhibited, these articles, like the work of the OJHS, remain one of the community's best kept secrets. Give yourself a treat and view the exhibit.

For viewing hours and more information call 232-7306.

Shalom Welcome inviting newcomers to coffee party

Newcomers to Ottawa are invited to attend the Jewish Community Council's Shalom Welcome Service Coffee Party on Monday, May 27 at 8 p.m. in the J.C.C. Assembly Hall, 151 Chapel Street.

The coffee party is an evening to socialize with other newcomers to Ottawa and the volunteers of the Shalom Welcome Committee. It is also an opportunity to learn about the community and its structure in a casual atmosphere.

Shalom Welcome Co-chairs Beryl Ben-Reuven and Ann Goldberg suggest that people interested in attending contact Kayla Mailay at the Jewish Community Council at 232-7306.

Newcomers Tea Sunday, June 16

The Ladies Reception Committee for Newcomers to the Ottawa Jewish Community will hold its Spring Tea on Sunday, June 16, 1991 at 2:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Irving (Ethel) Taylor, 111 Echo Dr., No. 601.

Newcomers who are interested in attending should call Mrs. Allan (Naomi) Cracower at 820-0420.

Making strenuous efforts

Czechoslovak Jewry trying to restore vitality

By Josef Klansky
PRAGUE (JTA) — Less than 18 months after the fall of the communist dictatorship in November 1989, Czechoslovak Jewry is struggling to restore a semblance of the vitality it last knew over a half century ago.

This devastated community in the heart of Eastern Europe is making strenuous efforts to rise from the ashes, to revive its traditional institutions while at the same time creating new ones to meet the uncertain demands of the future.

Crushed by Nazis

The Jewish life that flourished in Prague between the two world wars was crushed by the Nazis in 1939, and only tiny remnants of the community survived the Holocaust. The community was further depleted by emigration and flight in 1945, in 1948 after the communist takeover, and again in 1968 after the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Under communist rule, religious communities were barely tolerated. Any activities outside those strictly defined for religious cults were forbidden.

Even Purim and Chanukah gatherings at the ancient Jewish Town Hall of Prague were held under the sharp surveillance of the anti-Zionist division of the secret police.

Changes echoed

The police also kept watch on the Jewish community from within. Among the top ranks of its leadership were informers who were appointed — or whose appointments were approved — by the communist authorities.

After the communists were toppled, the changes taking place in the public life of the country were echoed in the Prague Jewish community.

Its new leadership sought to overcome the oppressive heritage of the recent past.

A new constitution was drafted, replacing the former Council of Jewish communities with a Federation of Jewish Communities of the Czech Republic.

Tragically, one of the new constitution's leading architects and the president of the community, Dr. Desider Galsky, died in an automobile accident last November only days before the new constitution was adopted.

The new constitution is unique in that in addition to regular membership, for which all Czech Jews are eligible, it recognizes something called "extraordinary" membership. This latter status is open to persons who would not be considered Jewish according to Jewish law, but who consider themselves Jewish and have a Jewish father or grandparent.

Extraordinary members enjoy all the rights of full membership except the right to hold elective office in the community.

Among the organizations and societies connected with Judaism that were founded or revived during the past year is The Czech Society of Jewish Culture. The society, based in the world famous Jewish Museum of Prague, organizes lectures, expositions and discussions dealing with literature, the creative arts, traditions and the Czech-Jewish common cultural heritage.

Other newly revived organizations include the Franz Kafka Association, which commemorates the work of the Prague-born Jew, and the Czechoslovak Society of Friends of Israel, which aims at filling the information gap created by scores of years of anti-Israel propaganda and disinformation.

Founded at meeting

The society, much of whose membership is non-Jewish, has begun publishing a quarterly bulletin with news of aliyah, achievements and problems in Israel. It also reports on cultural and economic relations between Czechoslovakia and Israel.

A Union of Czechoslovak Jewish Youth was founded at a meeting of about 60 young people last November, sponsored by the European Jewish Students Union. It plans to organize Jewish youth gatherings in the future.

Representatives from several Czech and Slovak cities revived the Czechoslovak Maccabi Sport Club last Dec. 1.

The sports club hopes to restore the rich traditions of Jewish sports in pre-war Czechoslovakia represented by such famous clubs as HaGibor in Prague, Maccabi in Brno and Bar Kochva in Bratislava.

The renewed Maccabi organization wants to combine sports with cultural and educational activities and to participate in international sports festivals such as the Maccabiah, the Jewish Olympics held in Israel every four years.

B'nai Brith, which before the Nazi occupation had 17 lodges in Czechoslovakia, will soon inaugurate its Renaissance Lodge in Prague, where the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai Brith will resume its activities here.

Singers rehearsing

Finally, in the cultural sphere, the Misnapha Singers are rehearsing their repertoire of Hebrew and Yiddish songs. The choir is already performing at religious and social events.

The foregoing list of societies, clubs and activities is all the more remarkable considering that the Prague Jewish community has at the moment only about 1,000 registered members plus an undetermined number of occasional participants at religious and other Jewish functions.

Most activities are in the secular realm, and some of the leaders of the Prague religious community are beginning to consider themselves superfluous. But after a half century of almost complete absence, any Jewish activity is welcome.

Emunah-Mizrachi 1991 Mothers in Israel

Each year Emunah Women's Organization has designated MOTHER'S DAY for our MOTHER IN ISRAEL PROJECT, in tribute to the uniqueness of our MOTHERS.

Your donation of $60.00 affords you the opportunity of becoming a MOTHER IN ISRAEL, symbolically adopting a child in Israel, thus enabling it to receive the profound Torah Education which Emunah schools provide, and the Dedication and Care which it meets out. This year more than ever, we intensify our efforts, and with good reason. We are living in historic times. We are witnessing what must surely count as one of the greatest miracles, the rescue in such vast numbers of those who to Israel are "Coming Home."

For MOTHER'S DAY you are paying the highest honor to the one you love, by presenting her with a MOTHER IN ISRAEL Gift. — No gift wrap, no GST — Just the Mitzvah of great kindness makes your gift special. She will feel uplifted, knowing that Israel's children will be the beneficiaries.

To ensure that every penny of these funds will go directly where needed, we are again dispensing with a formal MOTHER IN ISRAEL DINNER.

We take the opportunity by way of the Ottawa Jewish Bulletin, to pay tribute, to you our MOTHERS IN ISRAEL, and to express to you our grateful appreciation for your tremendous support. We are listing as follows the names of our donors:

We thank you and our children in Israel thank you.

Cause for triple jubilation

May 28 is three times good for the Shteynbergs

By Alyce Baker
This year May 28 brings cause for triple jubilation at the home of Nelli and Mordechai Shteynberg.

First of all, the day marks the couple's fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Secondly, May 28 also marks the tenth anniversary of the Russian Jewish emigres' arrival in Canada.

("Well, it was actually May 27, 1981," Mordechai explains. "At 6:00 p.m. — erev May 28th — so we always consider it May 28th.")

And third, having been a resident of Canada for ten years, on May 28, 1991, Max becomes eligible to receive his old age security pension.

Three excellent reasons for Nelli and Mordechai — who is best known to the Ottawa Jewish community as the delightful 'front man' in the basket room at the Jewish Community Centre — to celebrate.

Born in Romania

Born in Romania, Mordechai was an educator by profession. His facility with languages enabled him to have an illustrious career, both as a linguist and teacher.

Nelli was a doctor of radiology. The two were married on May 28, 1941.

During World War II, Max was mobilized to Izhevsk in the Urals where he served as an interpreter working with the Germans. Fluent in Russian, English, German and French, he also had facility in Latin and

Nelli and Mordechai Shteynberg

Greek.

Mordechai's other love was music, but having lost his violin during the war, he has given it up.

The Shteynberg family grew from two to four with the birth of their daughters, Mila and Natalie, one born in Izhevsk, the other in Odessa, where the family later moved.

In 1978 their younger daughter moved to Canada with her husband, followed six months later by her elder sister. Mordechai and Nelli remained in Odessa where Mordechai was highly respected and well treated in his profession. The couple lived very well but Mordechai was concerned about his wife's working conditions, fearing for her health in the radiology lab. And Nelli, like all mothers, yearned to be near her children.

The Shteynbergs fought to be reunited with their children for two long years. They recount the all too familiar stories often cited about long delays and obvious bureaucratic stall tactics.

The couple considered emigrating to Israel where Nelli's father, a physician, lived but the existing law in 1980 was to enforce the reunification of families, so it was Canada that finally welcomed the Shteynbergs at 6:00 p.m. on May 27, 1981.

Settled in Hamilton

Mordechai and Nelli initially settled in Hamilton where he taught languages and also worked as a curator of art exhibits. Nelli, who had greater difficulty picking up the English language, could not continue in her profession and so took over as a babysitter for her grandchildren so that her daughter could resume work.

In 1983 they followed their children to Ottawa where Max went to Jewish Family Services to seek employment. For a time he manned the Jewish Community Centre switchboard, followed by a stint at Boyd Moving and Storage. Eventually he became the mainstay at the Jewish Community Centre Health Club where patrons are greeted by his smiling face and where his good nature keeps things humming.

Mordechai and Nelli are looking forward to their fiftieth anniversary celebration in Toronto among family and friends.

Russia's loss was Canada's gain. Na zdorovie (long life) to you, Max and Nelli Shteynberg!

Name Morris Presser to receive JCC's highest volunteer award

By Estelle Melzer

The Jewish Community Centre is pleased to announce that Morris Presser is the 1991 recipient of the JCC's Ben Karp Volunteer Service Award — the highest honor the JCC can bestow.

The award will be presented on Tuesday, June 4, at the JCC's Annual Meeting and Awards Night.

It would be difficult to find anyone, anywhere, who personifies as enthusiastically as does Morris Presser the concept of volunteerism. Since he arrived in Ottawa 16 years ago, Morris has become deeply involved in almost every aspect of Jewish communal life.

Montreal-born, Morris and his wife Myra had moved a number of times through company transfers and were eager to "grow roots" when they came to Ottawa.

Morris recalls that "Ottawa opened its arms to us" when he and Myra and their infant daughter Cindy arrived in 1975. The Pressers were quick to embrace the community in return, and their eagerness to make a contribution soon had them involved literally everywhere.

Morris has been president of B'nai Brith Parliament Lodge; president of Beth Shalom West Synagogue; a trustee member-at-large on the executive of the Jewish Community Council; a U.J.A. canvasser and, with his wife, Myra, co-chairman of Super Sunday; a member of the Vaad Committee on Teen Trips to Israel; and chairman of the Vaad Council on Teens. Currently he is vice-president of State of Israel Bonds, a member of the JNF tribute dinner committee, and a member of the JCC Board of Directors.

He was the recipient of the 1990 Freiman Family Young Leadership Award.

Although Morris approaches all his commitments with great enthusiasm, his involvement with youth is, perhaps, the area of volunteerism closest to his heart.

"The kids are our future," he explains. "I firmly believe that if we can get teens involved now, they will someday be the leadership of our community."

Ottawans attending May Hidden Child Conf.

The Hidden Child Conference being held in New York May 26-27 will be attended by several individuals from the Ottawa Jewish community.

Elly Bollegraaf, a member of the Holocaust Remembrance Committee, who was hidden as a two-and-a-half to five-year-old boy by a family with 11 children in Holland, spearheaded local attendance at the conference.

Bollegraaf says there is a sudden interest in overcoming the silence among people who as children were hidden during the Holocaust.

"Hidden children" typically remain in hiding psychologically and are not viewed by the

Morris Presser

As chairman of the Vaad Council on Teens, Morris pushed the idea of a teen play to serve as a catalyst for revitalizing teen programming.

He worked with the Jewish Community Centre to set up JCC Theatreworks, and his support and guidance were vital to the success, over the last four years, of this annual teen event. As he had hoped, the teen play did serve as a focus for involving teens, and helped make the JCC's teen program one of the strongest in the country.

As a member of the JCC Board, Morris wears many hats. He sits on the Executive, the Teen Committee and the Budget Committee. Most importantly, because of his vast involvement in all aspects of Ottawa's communal life, he serves as a liaison between the JCC and other organizations.

For example, during B'nai Brith's national financial crisis, he worked out an arrangement with Ottawa's B'nai Brith Lodges to keep the JCC's B.B.Y.O. programs afloat. When Morris Presser becomes involved, anything becomes possible.

For the Pressers, community involvement is a family affair. "I couldn't spend so much of my time on all these commitments," he explains, "if I didn't have such an understanding family." His family not only supports him, but also follows his example of community involvement. Myra was president of the Beth Shalom West Sisterhood and co-chairperson of Women's Division U.J.A. Daughter Cindy, 17, was president of Chapter Chai B.B.Y.O. and involved with Beth Shalom West youth. Son Steve, 14, is active in

A.Z.A.

When asked what motivates his volunteerism, Morris responds with an anecdote. "Recently," he recalls, "as part of a B'nai Brith project, I delivered baskets of Passover food to new immigrants. Thirty years ago I accompanied my father as he delivered Passover food baskets. If you, if anyone, had gone with me and seen the looks on the faces of those families, you too would have been 'motivated'. Nothing can give more pleasure than personal involvement."

Succeeds Sen. David Croll

Jewish War Vets new national commander is Sen. Jack Marshall

A recent book published by Douglas & McIntyre and authored by R. Warren James, bears the title The People's Senator. The Life and Times of David A. Croll.

As he approached his ninetieth birthday, and after a long, colorful life of illustrious achievement, Senator Croll invited Senator Jack Marshall to assume the office of national commander of the Jewish War Veterans of Canada. The year was 1989 when the two distinguished Canadian Jewish senators met to discuss how they could continue effectively to serve the Jewish war veterans of Canada, in addition to their heavy duties and responsibilities in the Senate.

David Croll has been blazing trails all his adult life. Windsor's first Jewish mayor, Ontario's first Jewish cabinet minister and Canada's first Jewish senator, he has fought unstintingly for social justice, never wavering in the belief that a strong nation cares for all its people. Today, at age 91, Croll is the dean of Canadian parliamentarians. He has just completed his forty-sixth continuous year of service, making his the second-longest parliamentary term in Canadian history.

Rose to captain

Honorable Jack Marshall was born in Glace Bay, Nova Scotia in 1919, and enlisted in the Canadian Army as a private in 1942. A D-Day veteran, Marshall rose to the rank of captain at the close of World War II. His military career spanned 25 years, culminating in his appointment as district commander of the militia for Newfoundland in 1967. During that time, Jack Marshall was recognized for his service on numerous occasions with medals, decorations and awards.

In 1968 he was elected to the House of Commons, where he represented the riding of Humber-St. George-St. Barbe for ten years. Upon resigning from the House of Commons in 1978, he was immediately summoned to the Senate by Rt. Hon. Pierre Trudeau.

Senator Marshall's interest in and work on behalf of Canada's veterans is extensive. In addition to his chairmanship of the Senate sub-Committee on Veterans Affairs, Senator Marshall has also participated in Committees on National Defence, Fisheries, and Social Affairs, Science and Technology.

Jewish veterans Posts are now located across the country, including Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Windsor, Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal and the Atlantic Region.

'Remains of the Day' to be reviewed by York prof.

The Book Discussion Group is concluding a stimulating program of book reviews by a group of interesting book reviewers.

The final review for this season will be given by the York University Professor Elaine Newton who will review Remains of the Day by Kazuo Ishiguro on Tuesday, May 21 at 8:00 p.m. at the Agudath Israel Chapel. (Book is available at the Library.)

Book Program Coordinator, Ruth Levitan, and her committee are now in the process of planning next year's program which will start in November in celebration of Jewish Book Month. Anyone interested in becoming a member can call Marcia Aronson, library chairman, at 224-9814 or Frieda Lauterman, librarian, at 722-0214.

The Malca Pass Library is constantly adding new books to its excellent selection of Judaica. These include both fiction and non-fiction on Jewish subjects by Jewish authors.

In addition, there are well-stocked sections on Jewish Canadiana, art, reference and a children's section, fiction and non-fiction. Membership is open to the Jewish community who are also invited to drop in, browse and borrow. There is no charge.

Library hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Thursdays and Sundays from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

Also available at the Library is a good selection of videos for children and adults and audio tapes which can be borrowed for one week at no charge.

Jewish history part of Queen's sessions

Local and regional Jewish historical societies from across Canada will meet at Kingston, Ontario during sessions of the Learned Societies on June 5 and 6.

The two-day program will include talks on Women's Involvement in Jewish History, the Teaching of the Holocaust in Canadian Universities and High Schools, the Urban and Rural experience of Jews in Western Canada and the Writing of Canadian Jewish History.

In addition to an archival resources exchange, the Kingston Jewish community will host a reception on the evening of June 5 at which Dr. Paul Bartrop of Adelaide, Australia will speak about Australian Jewry and Their Remembrances.

Everyone is invited to attend. Members of the Ottawa Jewish Historical Society will have received registration forms from the Learned Societies.

Anyone planning to attend, or requiring further information, should call Esther Bilsky at 232-7024.

Year later lecturer's outlook relevant to Arab/Israeli problem

Last June at the Fourth Annual Dr. Imre Rosenberg Memorial Lecture, international human rights lawyer Irwin Cotler spoke to the Ottawa Jewish Community about "The Year of the Revolution: Soviet Jewry, Eastern Europe and the Middle East." A year later, the following quote is as relevant as ever:

"Arab/Israeli conflict, in the Palestine question, must repudiate the Zionism-is-Racism resolution which remains as a standing libel not only on Israel and the Jewish people, but as an assault on the integrity of the United Nations and international law.

If the statement that petitioners must come with clean hands, means anything, if the notion of the struggle for human rights means anything, anyone who wants to participate in the resolution of the Arab/Israeli conflict has got to repudiate the Zionism-is-Racism resolution; they have got to repudiate the article in the PLO covenant which still calls for the destruction of Israel. "Let me tell you as a constitutional lawyer, as I tell the PLO and I meet with PLO people — I am not the government of Israel, I can do so — that I take constitutional charters seriously. I tell them that their constitutional charter — because that is what it is, it is not just a propaganda graffiti — calls unequivocally for the destruction of Israel.

It is not as the newspapers say, that Israel says the charter calls for the destruction of Israel, it is the PLO covenant which calls for it. Anyone who wishes standing in the peace process has to unequivocally not only cease and desist from acts of terrorism, but cease and desist from promoting hatred of Israel and the Jewish people, which incidentally would be a crime here in Canada with regard to our laws.

Historical revisionism in the Middle East is no less serious a cause than historical revisionism with regard to the Holocaust when it amounts to group libel; in that sense we have to demand that people repudiate acts of terrorism which are the culmination of acts of group libel."

Jack Shapiro, chairman of the Gala Cantorial Concert Committee, promises an exceptional program of music, featuring three world-class cantorial virtuosos.

Joining Stephen Chalet, esteemed cantor of Congregation Beth Shalom, will once again be Cantor David Bagley of the Beth Shalom Synagogue in Toronto and, for the first time this year, Cantor Alberto Mizrahi, of the Anshe Emet Synagogue in Chicago.

Assisting the Cantors in a lively and varied selection of both cantorial and operatic solos, duets and trios will be the Beth Shalom High Holy Days Choir under the direction of Choirmaster Al Shapiro, supported by piano accompanists Klara Goizman, Evelyn Greenberg and Carol Gurofsky.

Following the resounding success of last year's concert, this second annual event coincides with the centennial of Congregation Beth Shalom, which traces its roots to the establishment of Congregation Adath Jesurun in 1892.

Selections will be dedicated to the late Cantors Rabin and Gertler of the congregation, whose musical arrangements form part of the unique liturgy of Beth Shalom.

This celebration of cantorial music, the age-old blending of prayer and musical art, is a fitting tribute to a century of traditional synagogue life in the Nation's Capital.

Tickets for the Gala Centennial Cantorial Concert "Once in a Century," are available by calling 232-3501. General admission tickets are priced at $18. each. A reception will follow the concert.

Those wishing to be patrons for the evening are entitled to one or two reserved seats, with the difference between their $100 donation and the cost of tickets subject to a charitable receipt for income tax purposes. Private individuals or business patrons will also be acknowledged in the program booklet.

Reserved seating for patrons will only be available until May 31.

Media Monitoring track record proving positive

The Media Monitoring Committee is developing a strong track record in having its members' Letters to the Editor published, says chairman Ron Singer.

Formed in the fall, the committee has been watching both the print and electronic media's treatment of all issues of Jewish concern, particularly Israel.

The primary activity has been to write Letters to the Editor of The Ottawa Citizen and The Globe and Mail and to respond by mail and telephone to radio and television broadcasts.

"Committees like these have been operating effectively in other cities across Canada and we consider it important to have one operating in Ottawa to deal with the negative portrayal of Israel in the media," Singer said.

"We must be prepared to respond in a co-ordinated manner," he said. "Realistically we know that dealing with the media on Israel-related topics is a tough battle."

People in the community who have been submitting Letters to the Editor or who have a particular interest in the media are encouraged to join the media monitoring committee. The committee will meet on Thursday, June 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the J.C.C. Board Room.

Contact Ron Singer at 747-1637 or Community Relations Director Ruth Kaban at 232-7306 for further information.

Romania would legislate vs. anti-Semitism

NEW YORK — The Prime Minister of Romania says he is actively seeking public support for legislation in the Romanian parliament outlawing anti-Semitism and other forms of racism.

At a meeting with the Conference of President of Major American Jewish Organizations recently, Prime Minister Petre Roman also said that relations with the 22,000-member Jewish community are "excellent" and that his government is actively working "to promote the fundamental values of freedom," including "humanitarian feelings, respect for religious belief and remembrance of tragedies past."

Manuals urge accountants, lawyers to advise clients on business in Israel

Two new manuals designed to help accountants and lawyers advise their corporate clients on doing business in Israel are now available without charge from the Committee for Economic Growth of Israel.

One publication, titled "11 Ways Accountants and Lawyers Can Assist their Clients to Successfully Do Business in Israel," outlines and analyzes Israeli laws and regulations governing foreign investment in the Jewish state. The 27-page manual also provides practical suggestions for maximizing profitability through investment in Israel.

A second manual, "Can You Make a Fair Return on Your Investment When You Operate a Factory in Israel?" cites the operational experience of Israeli and American companies with manufacturing or research facilities in that country.

Both were written by Elmer L. Winter, chairman of the Committee for Economic Growth of Israel, and published by the Committee, a non-profit organization of American business leaders, whose objective is to expand business and trade relations between the United States and Israel.

Key section

A key section of the first manual deals with duty-free export of American goods to Europe via Israel. Noting that Israel is the only country that has free trade agreements with both the United States and the European economic community, the publication explains how American companies can reduce the cost of their exports to EEC nations by as much as 25 percent by taking advantage of Israel's preferred trading status.

Another section offers information on tax, financing and research benefits to be realized from setting up subsidiary operations in Israel or investing in joint ventures with Israeli companies.

The second manual, which discusses the profit levels companies may expect from their Israeli investments, notes that some 150 American companies — including major corporations like Intel, National Semiconductor and Motorola — now maintain facilities in Israel. Analyzing actual business situations, the 17-page publication notes that tax incentives and research and development subsidies by the Israeli government often make it possible for investing companies to realize net profits twice as great as would be possible in the United States on an equal volume of gross sales.

Copies of "11 Ways Accountants and Lawyers Can Assist Their Clients to Successfully Do Business in Israel" and "Can You Make a Fair Return on Your Investment When You Operate a Factory in Israel?" may be obtained without charge by writing or calling the Committee for Economic Growth of Israel, 5301 North Ironwood Road, Milwaukee, WI 53217, (414) 961-1000.
